Sue Shea talked about driving around town checking on many of our elder's at risk. As there are many seniors living alone, we need more of their neighbors to do welfare checks on elders in the area.

We also talked about the warming station at the library during one of the storms. People had nothing but praise for the staff of the library, they went above and beyond.

We have two very good candidates for the outreach worker's position.

We could also use some more volunteers for the Memory café program, as it is growing in popularity.
